One suspect dead, one arrested after car chase

BY KEVIN WEEDMARK

One suspect is dead and one is in custody facing five charges after a police chase across southern Saskatchewan and Manitoba Tuesday and Wednesday.

The chase started in southeast Saskatchewan and the high-speed chase went right through Moosomin Tuesday evening, and two police cars ended up colliding south of Moosomin.

The suspects continued into Manitoba, where Winnipeg City Police and RCMP pursued them.

One suspect, Tristan Mariash, was shot dead by police around 3 am Wednesday in Niverville and another, David Burling, fled that scene and was arrested at 1:30 pm Wednesday in Springside, Saskatchewan.

Burling is charged with two counts of Assault Against a Peace Officer with a Weapon, Possession of Property Obtained by Crime Over $5,000, Failure to Stop, and Dangerous Operation of a Motor Vehicle.

A woman was arrested with Burling and has been released without charges.

The timeline covers two days and two provinces.

On Tuesday, June 4, 2024 at approximately 8:10 am,

Moosomin RCMP received a report of a suspicious vehicle at a rural property outside of Moosomin.

It was reported that a dark grey pick-up truck and a white pick-up truck were on the property. When the owner approached them, they fled. Officers from Moosomin and Broadview RCMP began working to locate the suspicious trucks.

Officers located the white pickup truck several times in the following hours. They activated their lights and sirens and the vehicle fled at a high rate of speed.

Anytime Fitness in Moosomin holds grand opening

Anytime Fitness in Moosomin held its grand opening on Thursday. The new gym is located at the north end of Main Street, and is owned by Eddy and Jolene de Vries, who also own the Anytime Fitness locations in Esterhazy and Yorkton. Mayor Larry Tomlinson was on hand to cut the ribbon for the new gym. In back from left are Nathan Mactal, owner Eddy de Vries, Mayor Larry Tomlinson cutting the ribbon, and owner Jolene de Vries. In front are Tamela Olafson, Tracy Russell, Michelle Raiwet, and Gagan Singh.

"Everyone is amazing here, our staff are awesome," said Eddy after the ribbon cutting. "I'm happy it finally happened, because in 2019 we were searching for property, and then the world fell apart in 2020. Just to see it finally come to fruition makes a huge difference. It's been a lot of work to get here and now it's finally here, it's pretty awesome. Moosomin is a special town."

"There's lots happening here, and it's very a business savvy town and welcoming to businesses," added Jolene.

Car show, farmers market coming June 14

BY RYAN KIEDROWSKI
LOCAL JOURNALISM INITIATIVE REPORTER

Cool cars, cool beverages, and hot barbecue—what else could you ask for on a Friday afternoon at the beginning of summer? The Moosomin Communities in Bloom is looking to entice swarms of people to their car show and farmer's market on June 14 over at Bradley Park from 4 to 9 pm. The event is free for all ages to attend, and for those looking to enter a vehicle in the car show, the fee has noted a price drop.

"We actually did a mega price drop, and it's actually $10," explained Communities in Bloom Project Director, Jasmine Davidson.

The event is a fundraiser for the local Communities in Bloom group, looking to build on the excitement of last year's fantastic four-bloom showing.

"I am planning on doing a Communities in Bloom flower garden," Davidson shared of one plan in store this year. "So just a colourful little garden area for people to hang out in."

For those wondering what flowers to buy to be in line with the annual colour theme, this year is dedicated to orange. As with last year, the town will be teaming up with the Moosomin Regional Park and the Pipestone Hills Golf Club to rekindle some of that 2023 magic.

Last year, the judges visited Moosomin in July and Davidson anticipates organizing a date for this year's judging soon.

"We get to decide with them what date, we get to figure that out together, she explained. "I should be hearing from them soon."

The car show and farmer's market also falls on a night of slo-pitch, plus Davidson mentioned other car shows happening on the Saturday (Rocanville) and Sunday (Maryfield) of the same weekend.

"It could be a full weekend of car shows," she said.

Scenes from the induction of Candace Barta-Bonk into the Knight's Cross of the Order of Hungary in Ottawa.

Candace Barta-Bonk awarded the Order of Merit of Hungary

BY ASHLEY BOCHER

Candace Barta-Bonk, the Hungarian Consul to Saskatchewan, was recently recognized for her contributions when she was awarded the Knight's Cross of the Order of Merit of Hungary by the Hungarian Ambassador to Canada.

While she was born in Canada, she feels a strong connection with her family's Hungarian heritage. "My heritage is Hungarian. Although I was born in Saskatchewan, I have pure Hungarian roots and I am a fourth generation Canadian. I have family ties to Hungary and have always had a connection to the Hungarian community in the province, and my husband and I spent nearly a decade living in Hungary."

Barta-Bonk says she was honoured to tour the current and former ambassadors around Saskatchewan and to the Hungarian settlements in the area.

"In 2017, the former ambassador to Hungary, Balint Odor, visited Saskatchewan on his trip. He visited the Kaposvar Hungarian settlement near Esterhazy and Bekevar, the Hungarian settlement near Kipling. I had the privilege of helping to host the ambassador at the Bekevar Church. It was very special to me as my great-grandparents were settlers who helped build the church," she said.

"It was after this visit that the ambassador wanted to create an honorary consul position for Saskatchewan. Up until that point the honorary consul in Alberta was responsible for Saskatchewan. It was quite an honour to be asked to take on this role."

She says there are a lot of people with Hungarian heritage in Saskatchewan.

"In Saskatchewan there are nearly 30,000 people with Hungarian heritage. Saskatchewan has the largest per capita ethnic Hungarians in Canada as well."

She says her family were among the first Hungarian settlers in Saskatchewan. "My great-grandparents were among the first pioneering Hungarian families to settle in Canada. They faced numerous challenges, but they were tough and resourceful. Then, they integrated into the Canadian society."

"Bekevar and Kaposvar are the very first Hungarian settlements in Canada."

She says Hungarians immigrated to Canada to farm. "There was definitely a promise of rich, fertile land, and there was a man named Esterhazy, he was the one that was in charge of the Esterhazy area. He was an agent and promoted and brought over many Hungarian people."

Candace says her role as Honorary consul is to help Hungarian families within Saskatchewan.

"The honorary consuls, we help Hungarian nationals if they need assistance during a crisis like a hospital stay or a natural disaster. I also help facilitate cultural, economic, and social relations between Hungary and Saskatchewan. So, I often arrange visits with the ambassador or the consul general, and prominent people from Hungary. Also as the honorary consul, I assist in notarization, and authenticating documents."

She says the former Hungarian ambassador to Canada approached her with this opportunity.

"The former Hungarian ambassador to Canada, Balint Odor, had asked if I would take on this role and it was quite an honour to be asked and I was honoured to serve and uplift the Hungarian community."

"My inauguration took place February 9, 2021. The current ambassador, Mária Vass-Salazar, and Valér Palkovits accepted my vows in a video conference as it was during Covid."

Candace was selected for the award by current Hungarian ambassador Mária Vass-Salazar.

"I was very grateful to be nominated by the current ambassador, her excellency Mária Vass-Salazar, in recognition of accomplishments for promoting the Hungarian community in Canada, and strengthening relations."

"I am deeply honoured and thankful to receive such an award. I am proud of my Hungarian heritage and feel compelled to help the Hungarian community in any way possible, but I really truly feel the highlight should be the Hungarian community and the people of Saskatchewan who have dedicated years of effort to various projects. I believe volunteers are the foundation of any community which is truly priceless. When we all work together we can accomplish great things."

She says she is proud of her heritage. "I am immensely proud of both my Hungarian and Canadian heritage. I cherish fond memories of family gatherings. When I was a child, we would gather in my grandparents' living room on special occasions and my grandfather would recite poetry of Petőfi Sándor and converse with us in Hungarian, and those moments remain in my heart. It is truly a testament to the importance of preserving one's heritage and culture."

"I feel it is important for people to know where they come from and understand their history. My hope is to make a stronger connection between Hungary and Saskatchewan."

Hungarian ambassador proud of Barta-Bonk's achievements

Mária Vass-Salazar, the Hungarian Ambassador to Canada, said she is proud of the work that Barta-Bonk has done.

"We appreciate Candace Barta-Bonk's activity as honorary consul of Hungary in Saskatchewan," she said. "Her role is important, given the fact that Canada is the second largest country in the world so our embassy tries to encompass all aspects of fostering relations between Canada and Hungary, but it's such a beautiful, vast country, that the more honorary consuls we have in the provinces and all over Canada, the better we can accomplish our goals. Candace's role is essential to foster relations between Canada and Hungary, and also to facilitate specific projects that Hungary, through the embassy, can work on with partners in Saskatchewan in business, cultural life, and of course a very prominent Hungarian community in Saskatchewan. Her role includes official administrative elements as well. She can take care of Hungarian citizens' business needs in Saskatchewan to a certain level. She can provide notary support and authentication of documents, and she can work with the embassy and we can follow up with them if it's a passport arrangement or higher, more complex administrative tasks that are required."

"She has been given the Knight's Cross of the Order of Merit of Hungary, which is the highest award that we can give to foreign nationals. There are three levels and this is the Knight's Cross level of the Order of Merit. I recommended Candace personally to be considered for this award because all through my experience here in Canada as the ambassador of Hungary, her work has been excellent. Her dedication, hard work, and drive in her work, and her drive to foster wider relations between Hungary and Canada really stands out."

"I have been to Saskatchewan four times already and wherever I went on an official visit, when I saw the Lieutenant-Governor and the premier and ministers in the province or when I visited the Hungarian communities, or on business visits, and one of my favourites, when I visited the Hungarian pilots who are training in Moose Jaw at NATO Flying School. On those four visits, Candace was very helpful and extremely resourceful as well in terms of arranging very useful meetings for me. As a descendant of Hungarians who settled in Saskatchewan in the 1880s, her commitment and dedication to fostering the Hungarian community and passing on the heritage to future generations is exemplary. I recommended her for this award and the President of Hungary signed the decree which officially bestows the Knight's Cross of the Order of Merit of Hungary on Candace. I am so pleased, because she is so deserving."

Important communities

Vass-Salazar says she believes Kaposvar and Bekevar in southeast Saskatchewan are important communities. "We are very proud to see the Hungarian community there thriving and those historic sites from the very early days of Hungarian settlement in Saskatchewan, and also the fact that after four or five generations it's flourishing. I've seen the churches and the documents from the early days. Through Candace's work, the government of Hungary has helped with renovations and I want to see that continue. It's very heartwarming to see that they are preserving the language, too. It's a difficult language but it's part of our identity."

Bleau given 125 days for maiming dog, two year driving suspension

BY RYAN KIEDROWSKI
LOCAL JOURNALISM INITIATIVE REPORTER
The case of a Moosomin man originally facing assault and attempted murder charges was resolved last week in Yorkton Court of King's Bench.

On June 3, Donald Bleau entered a guilty plea of maiming a dog, to which he was sentenced 125 days in jail.

With credit for pre-trial custody, that sentence was effectively time served.

On another count of impaired operation of a vehicle, Bleau faces a two-year driving prohibition. He also received a three-year conditional sentence on charges of dangerous operation of a vehicle; possession of a weapon for a dangerous purpose; two counts mischief to property under $5,000; resisting arrest; and possession of a prohibited firearm.

The charges stem from an incident on Sept. 29, 2021 when Moosomin RCMP received multiple calls from the public of a truck being driven in a reckless manner around Moosomin. While police were responding to those calls, members were flagged down by someone stating they were assaulted by Bleau, explaining that Bleau had rammed the complainant's vehicle with his truck before leaving the scene. RCMP members observed Bleau's truck outside Moosomin Towing and Auto Service where he reportedly exited the business and pointed a crossbow in the direction of attending officers.

According to police, Bleau then walked across the street towards a residence; shouting threats toward RCMP and Rob Austin, who had emerged from the dwelling.

"The male with the weapon then discharged it in the direction of the other adult male; he was not struck or injured," RCMP said in a media release.

As a result of the discharged weapon, one arrow was found lodged in the wall of Rob and Maggie Austin's home on the corner of Ellice and South Front Street. A second arrow struck the Austin's dog, Sunny, who ran off with the object lodged in him. Fortunately, Sunny survived, having been found during the following day through search efforts involving dozens of volunteers. Veterinary assessment and care allowed Sunny to return home within days.

As for Bleau, he attempted to flee police after firing the crossbow.

"The male suspect got back into his truck, left and then drove back again to the same residence, damaging multiple vehicles and other property," RCMP said. "The male drove towards one of the officers on scene. The officer was able to avoid being struck by the truck. The truck then crashed into a boulevard, disabling it."

Bleau exited the truck and was arrested, himself and one of the officers sustaining "minor injuries." The crossbow was then seized, and as a result of the investigation, Bleau's initial charges included attempted murder, assault, assault with a weapon, assaulting a peace officer, and uttering threats.

After an appearance in Moosomin Provincial Court in February, 2022, Bleau was released into a 24-hour curfew on a Coronach area farm. He had previously been released on a $5,000 cash bail on Dec. 20, 2021, with an initial plan at that time to use electronic monitoring. Issues arose with regards to installing that system, hence the curfew order on the property of Rodney and Jackie Clark.

The white pick-up truck was later located abandoned near Whitewood, Sask. Investigation determined the suspects were now travelling in a black Ford F-350. The dark grey pick-up truck had since been recovered in the Melville detachment area.

Multiple Saskatchewan Crime Watch Advisories were issued throughout June 4, asking members of the public to report sightings of the vehicles and information on their whereabouts. Numerous RCMP officers were involved in the efforts to locate the suspect vehicle.

The suspect vehicle sped through Moosomin Tuesday evening, dodging vehicles and people as it sped south on Cook Road, and south of Moosomin two police vehicles collided, resulting in damage to the vehicles but no serious injuries to the officers inside.

During the evening of June 4, investigators determined the suspect vehicle had travelled into Manitoba. Efforts to locate the vehicle were ongoing but police were not actively pursuing it at the time. Manitoba RCMP were alerted.

On Wednesday, June 5, at 12:40 am, the Winnipeg Police Service received information through the RCMP Telecoms regarding a Black Ford 350 reported stolen from a rural Manitoba municipality southwest of Winnipeg. Information was also provided that the vehicle, occupied by several potentially armed individuals involved in prior criminal activity, was making its way to Winnipeg.

At approximately 12:50 am, a West District General Patrol Unit observed the stolen vehicle near Ness Avenue and Linwood Street in Winnipeg.

Officers immediately requested assistance from the Flight Operations Unit (Air 1), which quickly acquired the stolen vehicle and provided visual containment information on the vehicle and its occupants.

A lengthy follow ensued, lasting approximately one hour, with Air 1 guiding Winnipeg police to a parking lot on College Crescent in Otterburne, Manitoba. As the police entered the parking lot, their cruiser was rammed by the stolen vehicle. Officers immediately engaged the suspects, resulting in a use of force incident involving the officers discharging their firearms. The suspects fled the parking lot.

Air 1 continued to contain the vehicle visually and followed it to a parking lot on Drovers Run in Niverville, Manitoba. Air 1 observed the driver exit the stolen vehicle, enter another vehicle, and flee the area. An adult female passenger attempted to flee on foot, however, responding RCMP officers quickly placed her under arrest.

Winnipeg Police Service officers checked the abandoned stolen truck and located an adult male passenger suffering from a gunshot wound.

Officers provided emergency medical care to the victim before the arrival of ambulance, however, he succumbed to his injuries.

This death is classed as an officer-involved shooting and is being investigated.

David Burling fled from the scene of this incident.

Later on the morning of June 5, the investigation determined he was in Saskatchewan RCMP jurisdiction.

Multiple Saskatchewan RCMP detachments and units began working extensively to locate him, supported by the Protection and Response Team from the Province of Saskatchewan, CN Police and Saskatoon Police Service's Air Support Unit.

Multiple updates were sent to the media, posted on Saskatchewan RCMP social media channels and sent via the Saskatchewan Crime Watch Advisory network as investigators received information about the potential location of the suspect and suspect vehicle.

Updates were posted on the World-Spectator's social media channels and website, with the World-Spectator being the first media outlet to link the death in Niverville with the chase and thefts in Saskatchewan. That post was seen by more than 150,000 people.

As it was unfolding, the incident was continually monitored by RCMP for public safety concerns.

David Frank Burling was arrested at Springside, Saskatchewan at approximately 1:30 pm Wednesday. Manitoba RCMP have now charged him.

Burling is charged with two counts of Assault Against a Peace Officer with Weapon, Possession of Property Obtained by Crime Over $5,000, Fail to Stop, and Dangerous Operation of a Motor Vehicle.

The truck abandoned in Niverville had been stolen from Cypress River, Manitoba two weeks ago. The dealer who sold the truck has access to information through the Ford Pass app and noted that the thieves put 6,079 km on the vehicle from the time it was stolen to the time it was abandoned at Niverville.

Saskatchewan RCMP's Broadview detachment and Regina General Investigation Section continue to investigate the incidents in Saskatchewan RCMP jurisdiction.

The investigation is active and ongoing; no charges have been laid on the Saskatchewan side as of Friday afternoon.

"There is much more work to do on this investigation," said Superintendent Rob Lasson, Acting Criminal Operations Officer for the Manitoba RCMP.

"This was a multi-agency, multi-jurisdictional event that was complex and had many moving parts, and all of those involved worked together toward the same goals—keeping citizens safe and getting the suspect in custody."

David Burling

"I look at your criminal record, and ... it's been a one-man crime wave, really, for two years," Manitoba Judge Heather Pullan told Burling during his May 2020 sentencing hearing.

"It's your responsibility, sir, together with whomever's out there supporting you, to see whatever it is that's driving this behaviour on your part," she said.

Pullan also said protecting the public is a fundamental principle in sentencing. "And as a justice system, we are doing a terrible job here," she said.

Again in 2022 Burling was back in court on similar charges.

Burling walked out of jail several months ago, fresh off a two-and-a-half year sentence that included a years-long driving ban on those charges, following a June 2022 police pursuit in Portage la Prairie in which he tried to run down police officers.

During sentencing for that incident, Manitoba provincial court Judge Jean McBride warned Burling to change his ways.

"It's my hope . . . Mr. Burling, that this is the very last time that you put yourself and others at risk by . . . not only stealing motor vehicles, but by fleeing from police and then driving dangerous. You do not have the right to do that," McBride told him.

"If this has not been a wake-up call for you, I don't know what is or what will be. And if it happens again, there's no question you'd be looking at a much longer jail sentence."

At a Smitty's Lounge in mid-March, Tristan Mariash and David Burling toasted to good times and being fresh out of jail. Now Mariash is dead and Burling is in custody.

Violent history

Burling has a history of fleeing from police. In 2020, he was sentenced to just under two years on charges that also included another flight from police, this time in the Crystal City area.

TBC declares impasse, teachers work-to-rule starting today

BY RYAN KIEDROWSKI
LOCAL JOURNALISM
INITIATIVE REPORTER

After returning to the bargaining table for one day last week, the Teacher's Bargaining Committee declared an impasse in negotiations, resulting in a call for indefinite work-to-rule sanctions across Saskatchewan beginning June 10.

"Over the course of negotiations, we have heard the Minister (of Education, Jeremy Cockrill) say repeatedly that the best agreements are negotiated at the table, and I continue to agree with our Minister," said Samantha Becotte, president of the Saskatchewan Teacher's Federation. "We made real progress in the five days in mid-May where negotiations occurred, and yesterday (June 5), we had a good day of important back-and-forth discussions about possible solutions to address the biggest priorities for teachers—classroom complexity and compensation. In the end, while there was a willingness by the GTBC (Government-Trustee Bargaining Committee) to discuss possible solutions, the government lacks the political will to adequately commit to providing funding to improve the conditions in classes for students."

The sanctions commencing today will be similar to those previously taken with teachers arriving at the workplace 15 minutes before the beginning of their day, leaving 15 minutes after the day has commenced, and being off-site over the noon hour. All volunteer extra-curricular activities and noon hour supervision will be withdrawn, however, teachers will be providing professional services throughout the day.

During talks on June 5, the STF noted "several paths for continued negotiation" were presented, but came away with binding arbitration as the only option proposed by the GTBC.

"We came to a tentative agreement, an agreement that was recommended and endorsed by the STF leadership," Cockrill told media gathered at the Legislature last Thursday morning. "Obviously, it was a close ratification vote that was lost. That's why we see binding arbitration is the best option going forward. There's clearly some sort of divide between the STF leadership and the membership on this. I think it's a good opportunity for a fair and third-party process to come in and figure out how to get a deal done and really provide certainty for students and families going forward."

In response, Becotte explained how entering into binding arbitration can extend longer than a return to the bargaining table, also one that could jeopardize additional supports for students.

"Binding arbitration can be a lengthy process, which would guarantee that no additional supports would be provided by September and possibly not even January if it's a prolonged period before we get a decision from the arbitrator," she said. "I believe that we are close to an agreement, and I encourage the government and the Saskatchewan School Boards Association to continue negotiating so that we can come to a quick resolution and start improving our students' learning conditions, and our teachers' working conditions as soon as possible."

Becotte reiterated that if a return to the bargaining table came to fruition, sanctions would be suspended or cancelled.

Both sides have now suggested arbitration.

The STF had previously proposed entering into binding arbitration back in March, but as Becotte noted, "the context changes very quickly."

"Back in March, we hadn't—in my perspective—experienced bargaining at the table; there hadn't been any good faith negotiations with back-and-forth presenting proposals," she said. "We saw that as the only option to move the process forward, whereas now we've had a full week back in May of good faith negotiations, back-and-forth conversations again, yesterday, the GTBC, showing that they're ready to listen to solutions, discuss solutions and find that Saskatchewan-made solution that can start to address the conditions in our classrooms in a meaningful way."

Cockrill noted binding arbitration wasn't the government's initial go-to option in dealing with the situation, but views it as a quality solution at this point.

"That wouldn't have been government's first choice at the beginning of this process," he said. "We've moved several times, and now we're willing to go to binding arbitration on this agreement, and again, provide certainty to families and students and teachers as well, to get an agreement."

Education Minister Jeremy Cockrill met with reporters in the rotunda of the Legislature in Regina last week. He was responding to questions regarding an impasse declared by the Teacher's Bargaining Committee after one day of renewed negotiations.

He also explained how during the process, each side would make their submission to the arbitration board. This could mean an arbitrator agreeing entirely with what the TBC puts forward.

When asked if the government would agree with such an outcome, Cockrill replied, "I guess that's to be seen in the arbitration process."

"I think we see the agreement that we had a few weeks ago as a great jumping off point for that process," he said.

When asked by the World-Spectator about the tone of negotiations last Wednesday as compared to those five days in May, Cockrill was quick to credit GTBC chair Don Hoiium.

"Don has been a fantastic leader for the GTBC over the last several months," he said. "The tone in the room yesterday was indicative of what we all feel—a bit of frustration and exasperation, in terms of the process. This is where finding a clear path forward, I think, is in everybody's best interest."

Becotte felt the tone of conversation was much akin to that of the May bargaining.

"There's a willingness to listen to try and investigate some of the solutions that are being brought forward and propose other solutions," she explained. "It just comes down to the decisions that we see from government that are continuing to leave our students behind. We've seen those decisions for the past decades, so while we have a slight change of course, we want to know that that change of course is going to continue in the long term. It can't just be in an election year budget, we want to know next year are the supports going to continue to be there for our students, are they going to continue to improve?"

As to the point Cockrill presented about a divide between the STF and its membership, Becotte was quick to assure the ties are strong.

"What I hear consistently from teachers is that they are united on the need to fight for public education and we need to start seeing solutions to the growing needs of our students," Becotte told the World-Spectator. "We need to see more support so that we can deliver that high quality education. I have never experienced a time in my career where teachers are more united to find solutions and start to see real improvements to their experiences in schools as well as the experience they can deliver to students in their education."

In our opinion:

Is supply management really driving up food prices?

Supply management causes volatility in food prices, leading Canadians to perceive certain food categories as expensive

Many Canadians argue that supply management should be eliminated because it drives up retail food prices. However, data from the last decade shows little evidence that supply management significantly increases food costs, though some caveats exist.

Using Statistics Canada's database of selected food products, my team at the agri-food analytics lab at Dalhousie University analyzed the price increases of all food items from 2017 to the present. We compared the price increases of supply-managed products to the overall increase across all food categories.

The average price increase since 2017 for all categories has been 30.2 percent. Among supply-managed items, only three exceeded this average: cream at 30.9 percent, butter at 30.7 percent, and eggs at 37.9 percent.

Here are the rest of the supply-managed products: whole chicken: 17.5 percent, chicken breast: 20.1 percent, chicken thighs: 14.5 percent, chicken drumsticks: 1.9 percent, milk (one litre): 25.3 percent, milk (two litres): 25.9 percent, milk (four litres): 25.4 percent, cheese: 20.7 percent, yogurt: 27.1 percent. These are all below the average increase for all food products tracked by the federal agency.

This data underscores how specific supply-managed items have performed relative to the broader food market. Notably, products like butter, cream, butterfat products, and eggs are exceptions, having increased more than the average since 2017, but not by a significant margin.

We also examined how supply-managed products have influenced food inflation over the last decade. The graph below shows the black line representing the overall food inflation rate. Compared to the lines representing supply management categories, there are no significant spikes or drops, indicating a stable inflation rate for general food items over the 10 years.

The fresh or frozen poultry (orange line) category shows more fluctuation compared to the general food line. Inflation rates for poultry have peaks and troughs, reaching as high as around 12 percent and dipping below -5 percent at times. This volatility is likely due to factors such as changes in feed prices, demand, or supply chain issues.

Dairy products (green line) display a moderate level of fluctuation but remain largely within a zero to 10 percent range. This suggests some stability but with periodic adjustments, possibly influenced by production costs or market demand. Finally, eggs (blue line) exhibit the most volatility among the categories shown. The inflation rate for eggs peaks at over 20 percent and has sharp declines, including a significant drop below -5 percent. This could be due to factors such as avian influenza outbreaks, which historically impact egg production and prices.

Based on the evidence over the last decade, it is hard to conclude that supply-managed products have significantly exacerbated the cost of food for Canadians. However, there is still cause for concern.

Supply-managed food categories, especially eggs, appear to fluctuate as much or more than many other food products. While supply management aspires to stabilize prices, the data suggests otherwise. Therefore, while it's not entirely fair to claim that supply management consistently drives food inflation higher, it does seem to occasionally contribute to higher prices.

The latest CPI report from Statistics Canada indicates that month-to-month increases for dairy, poultry, and eggs are much higher than the average for April. Price volatility is a significant reason Canadians perceive a food category as expensive, and supply management is not preventing that from happening.

Additionally, our analysis covers only 10 years and doesn't consider that supply-managed product prices may have been higher when compared to other categories. Anecdotal evidence suggests these products tend to be cheaper in other parts of the world, including the United States.

Beyond price volatility, supply management inflates prices for processors, particularly dairy, which, in turn, suppresses innovation up the food chain. Our discussions with dairy processors indicate that industrial milk in Canada is much too expensive. In fact, industrial milk prices in Canada are the highest in the industrial world.

For supply management to better serve Canadians, reducing retail price volatility and lowering industrial prices should be key objectives for policymakers.

A few new summer events I dreamt up ...

We recently picked up our newest employee, Neethu, at the airport in Regina and brought her out to Moosomin.

At the airport I convinced a few RCMP officers in red serge to pose with Kara and our new employee to welcome her to Saskatchewan, and a few blocks from the airport we had to stop for a Regina traffic jam as a large family of geese crossed the road.

On the drive to Moosomin, Neethu asked what there are for events in rural Saskatchewan, so I made up a few just for fun. I'm not entirely sure if she believed me or not, but I think my spiel went something like this:

1. Gopher Hole Golf Tournament

Move over, Augusta National—Saskatchewan's own gopher hole golf is the pinnacle of sporting challenge. Armed with nothing but a nine-iron and a can of bug spray, golfers navigate the treacherous terrain of Whistling Wheat Pastures Golf Club. Rumor has it that last year's winner, Earl "The Whacker" Johnson, took home a prize consisting of a lifetime supply of mosquito nets and a gift card to Tim Hortons. Two-stroke penalty if you trip in one of the gopher holes.

2. The Great Prairie BBQ-Off

Nothing says summer like a barbecue, and in Saskatchewan, we take our grilling very seriously. The Great Prairie BBQ-Off is where legends are made and stomachs are tested. Last year, the highlight was Farmer Joe's experimental Prairie Oyster Skewers. This year, the competition heats up as contestants vie for the coveted Golden Tongues. Will Mabel's secret moose marinade reign supreme, or will newcomer Tim's deep-fried moose knuckles steal the show? Only time, and a lot of antacids, will tell.

3. Saskatoon Berry Pie Eating Contest

What's summer without a little gluttony? This annual event separates the berry lovers from the pretenders. Held at Mabel's Diner, contestants have 10 minutes to devour as many pies as humanly possible. Last year's champion, 82-year-old Doris McKenzie, has been training rigorously, promising to defend her title. Spectators are encouraged to bring rain ponchos for the inevitable berry splatter zone.

4. The Tractor Parade

What's a summer celebration without a good old-fashioned parade? And by parade, we mean tractors. Lots and lots of tractors. The Annual Tractor Parade showcases everything from the latest models with air conditioning and automatic everything to rusted relics that look like they might fall apart if you sneeze too hard. Wave to your neighbors and try not to inhale too much exhaust—it's all part of the charm!

5. Cow-Patty Bingo

For those of you unfamiliar with Cow-Patty Bingo, allow me to enlighten you. Picture a field divided into squares, each sold to hopeful participants. Then, introduce a cow and wait. Wherever nature calls, the owner of that square wins a prize.

Kevin Weedmark

These RCMP officers were kind enough to pose with Kara and our newest employee, and fortunately didn't look up if I have any outstanding speeding or stunting tickets.

It's an event that combines the thrill of gambling with the earthy reality of rural life. Bets are on Bessie, the reigning champion, known for her precision and regularity.

6. The Sunburn Festival

Of course, we have the Sunburn Festival every summer. Named for the inevitable consequence of spending more than five minutes outside, this festival celebrates all things summer. Enjoy live music from local bands, featuring hits like "Eternal Sunburn" "I Can Do It With A Broken Tractor" "But Daddy I love Timbits" "So K-12 School" "Canola Bloom" "Slow It Down (There's Farm Equipment Ahead)" and "Million Dollar Combine." There will be sunburn contests, so be sure to skip the sunscreen if you're feeling particularly competitive. Remember, the reddest belly wins a gallon of aloe vera and the reddest bald head wins two growlers of Skout Brewing's finest!

7. The Annual Cow Chip Tossing Championship
In what might be the most fragrant event of the summer, competitors take turns flinging dried cow patties as far as they can. This year's twist? The introduction of an obstacle course featuring hay bales, a small creek, a couple of goofs in your neighbor's stolen truck, and possibly a black bear. The winner gets bragging rights and a shiny golden shovel.

Actually, some of those sound kind of fun. I better get planning!

Home for the Summer

From university to a summer job at the World-Spectator . . . but still learning!

I finished my last final Monday, April 29. After that, I packed everything to come back to Moosomin for the summer! I am so excited to have four months off and work full-time at the Spectator. Believe it or not, I find work more fun than school. Coming home felt exciting and comforting. I can take a break from the nonstop city rush and enjoy summer in our sweet and peaceful town.

My first year of university was mostly busy, but exciting. It went by insanely fast so I am hoping the next three years will be the same. When people say university is different than high school, they couldn't be more right and now I understand why some say that.

I took five classes both semesters and found many assignments piling onto one another, but with a little bit of multitasking and an easy schedule, I found a great deal of my days were free to do as I wish. University is nothing like high school in the sense that you may be at school for only a few hours a day and then home for the rest. To be honest, I became bored sitting around at home when I had no classes. It gets old fast. You can only do so much cleaning and laundry before you have nothing to do other than an assignment or if I was ahead, then nothing at all. I found a lot of my time was sitting around and I did not like it. I have always liked to be busy and wanting to do something, so when the time came where I had hours of free time, I was simply bored.

However, this was not all the time, but about twice a week where my days were sitting around on the couch. In high school you are there from morning until 3 pm and then possibly sports practice after school or work and I began to miss my busy schedule I once had in high school.

While attending U of R, I also did some writing for the World-Spectator. I was able to interview over the phone, record on my laptop, and send in stories for the paper. I really enjoyed multitasking school with interviews and transcriptions. I found it a nice break from thinking, but rather just listening to people's stories over the phone and creating their story.

I find work very exciting at the Spectator. I learn by writing factual and heart-warming stories diversifying my knowledge on all kinds of topics. I recently interviewed the Vice-President of Mosaic, Lawrence Berthelet, and he explained his occupation. I have never been interested in the mining industry before and didn't know much about it, so that transcription was a little harder with trips back and forth to Kevin's office asking what certain acronyms and mining terminology mean, but I learned so much about this important industry.

I have also interviewed Bill Thorn, Charlie Leslie, and Nancy Apskhrum on health-related stories about diseases people live with every day that I had heard of and knew a little bit about, but not nearly as much as I learned from listening to Bill, Charlie and Nancy's stories.

I enjoy the interviewing process where I get to hear stories first-hand and learn about different occupations, professions, and stories of everyday life that you just don't get to read out of a textbook in school or just don't get to feel the emotional connection for.

I enjoy listening and being curious. You never get a certain time slot in life to just sit down with someone and ask questions. Journalism has taught me it is interesting to ask questions and be given answers from the heart for each and every story you write. I have learned I love talking to people.

I like to think partly why I like writing stories at the Spectator is because of the number of amazing stories there are to share in our community. There are exciting projects happening every week, and stories waiting to be told.

I enjoy meeting new people within Moosomin just because they have a story to share with the Spectator. I like sharing everyone's stories because it is people I know, or people I just haven't met yet that share their life stories with me to share with the rest of our community. It is easy to tell stories in a town where there are great things happening and great people confidently wanting to share theirs.

Although I am not taking journalism in university, it is a job where I can be curious and have my questions answered and people's lives can be impacted. I have been debating on my university degree for some time and still am not sure what I really want to do, but as of right now I am not worried nor thinking about that because all I know is, I enjoy working at the World-Spectator with an amazing staff and learning from my experienced and kind bosses, Kevin and Kara, and of course interviewing and sharing our community's stories. I know that for this summer I am working at the World-Spectator and I enjoy doing it.

My favourite part of this job is that every day is different. Each day there is a different story or multiple interviews sharing different ideas, experiences, and accomplishments. I have flown a drone, attended a Chamber meeting, and interviewed amazing people, from cabinet ministers to a First Nations Chief to the Hungarian Consul to Saskatchewan, to a Nepali journalist who has climbed Mount Everest, to the Hungarian Ambassador to Canada, and so many others with just as important stories, and that has only been over the last month. There is so much more time to meet amazing people.

Some days, I may even work on sales as well, take pictures around town, or be out somewhere in the area reporting. Everything is exciting when there is variety and I'm able to stay busy. I like to multi-task and keep myself busy throughout the day, so each day is short, but fun.

With school, I found every day felt very similar to the next with a class schedule and continuing to work on PowerPoints, notes, and assignments. It became old fast and I felt bored most of the time with every day feeling the same. At the Spectator, it doesn't even compare.

Last week, I remember it was Friday and I had no idea where the week went—it had felt like it was Tuesday, but that to me is the best part—feeling accomplished and busy all while living each day exploring stories among our community.

Ashley Bochek is a World-Spectator employee and a university student.

Sam Burroughs fundraiser raises $35,000

BY ASHLEY BOCHEK

Volunteers hosted a fundraiser for Sam Burroughs on Saturday, June 1.

Sam Burroughs lost his home in a house-fire. He is involved in many community groups, the Moosomin Fire Department, the Kinsmen and Kinettes, and the Moosomin local of the Métis Nation of Saskatchewan.

Angela Thorn, an organizer of the event, said there was overwhelming turnout for the fundraiser. More than 325 people attended the event and it raised $35,000.

"We raised about $35,000. It was awesome. It was super. Everyone had fun and spent lots of money on our silent and live auctions."

She says she wasn't surprised with the community's attendance.

"I wasn't surprised by the turnout. Sam is well-known in a lot of different groups in the community. We thought it would be well attended."

"It was a lot of work. A lot of organizing and planning went into the fundraiser for Sam."

Thorn says the volunteers were happy with the support from the community.

"Everybody was really overwhelmed. There was a few tears shed. I think everyone was exhausted too because it has been a lot of work, but to see our efforts were awarded by the attendance was pretty great."

"The silent auction turned out really good as well as the live auction. We are happy with how they went and the money raised toward Sam."

"We are happy with how it turned out." Burroughs said he was overwhelmed. "I couldn't believe it—it was huge," he said. "I think everything went well, but it's still weird thinking that was for me because I've never been on the receiving end of one of those before. I've seen it for many people before but I never thought I'd need one for myself. It was just nice seeing everyone there supporting me and just sticking together and pulling through for someone in need."

He says it was humbling to see the crowd there to support him.

"It was nice but also nerve-wracking," he said. "When it came time to do the speech I wasn't sure how I would handle myself up there but I think things went pretty good, especially knowing the people who gave a speech beforehand. I was like, 'Oh my God,' as soon as I knew that Rob Hanson was giving the speech. He's just got a way with words and I didn't know if I'd be able to follow that."

Volunteers with Sam Burroughs at fundraising event

Local groups held a fundraiser for Sam Burroughs on Saturday. Burroughs lost his home to fire recently. Members of the Moosomin Fire Department, the Kinsmen and Kinettes, and the Moosomin local of the Métis Nation of Saskatchewan worked together on the fundraiser.

He said both the financial support and seeing that everyone is behind him are helpful. "We're still waiting on insurance and battling them for money so the cash will help there, and just seeing everyone pulling for you just gets you motivated a little more again. It picks you up off your feet and you just want to get going, get to work and get things done."

He said being on the receiving end of a fundraiser gives him a new perspective.

"It still blows my mind that it was for me," he said. "I'm usually in there doing the work and all that but that night I was the man of the evening. I don't think it really hit me until I got up on stage. Once I got through the speech I just had a load off my shoulders and was able to relax and enjoy the evening in everyone's company."

What has the whole experience taught him?

"This community, not only the town of Moosomin but everyone around, like all of the surrounding communities and the people around it, they are just unbelievable. I can't thank them enough and I don't think that most of them want to be thanked."

"They do it just because they want to help. Everyone thinks I'm a nice guy out there but everyone else has that same kind of mentality around here so it's not just me. It's human nature I think, just to help out and some people are fortunate enough to be able to and some aren't, but I'm sure everyone would like to."

Burroughs is planning to build a new home or bring in an RTM on his lot.

I ♥ DAD

HAPPY FATHER'S DAY

JUNE 16, 2024

Ecole St. Lazare

My dad is special because he never gives up.

Max D.

My dad is special because he is very brave. He is also very talented at farming and calving. He also is very funny, cool and a guy who loves his dad jokes.

Kane M.

My dad is special because he cooks for us. He takes care of us, too. Lastly, he sometimes helps me when I can't do something.

Charles M.

My dad is special because he is a superhero. He takes me to hockey and softball. He helps mom cook. He seeds and harvests. He makes it so we can go on vacations. He makes money for us. He went to Regina and bought us a dog. Dad, if you're reading this, just letting you know I love you to the moon and back.

Ivy H.

My dad is special because when I need him, he's there. Me and my dad like to go fishing together. Me and my dad like to bike to the park. I love my dad.

Bo S.

My dad is special because he practices ball and hockey with me. He loves me. I am definitely my dad's favourite because I am the only girl.

Dawson D.

My dad is special because he and my mom both take care of me and my sister. They both love us all the same.

Broox B.

My dad is special because he is kind, loving and he pays the bills. He is sweet. He bought my dirt bike. I love my dad. We sometimes go in the valley down at the creek. It is so cool. I love my dad!

Zoe D.

My dad is special because he always comes home and plays softball. We pitch, throw each other a ball and bat off a t-ball or pitcher. I love my dad.

Blakely H.

My dad is special because he is very nice to me. He always tries to make my games every single time.

Landon S.

My dad is special because he takes us on trips to Mexico, and he plays board games and card games with me. My dad is the best because he is my dad!

Anika T.

My dad is special because he loves me and loves playing video games with me and my sister. He also cooks for us. He also teaches me things like soccer and hockey.

Eliette T.

My dad is special because he loves me, my siblings and my family. He brings me everywhere fun and is kind.

Marjela M.

Do you love your dad? I do! I love him to the moon and back. He is the best dad in the world because he is loving, nice, funny and happy.

Emily B.

Beckett donates slab roller to arts centre

Jacqui Beckett donated a $2,000 slab roller to the Moosomin Visual Arts Centre last week. The piece of equipment will be used for rolling slabs of clay for hand building pottery.

Beckett raised the money to purchase the slab roller by holding an art card fundraiser and selling her cards around the Moosomin area.

Westman RCMP Report

73 calls for service

During the week of May 26 to June 1, Westman RCMP received a total of 73 calls for service. Of the 73 calls, 18 were traffic related including 14 moving traffic/speeding violations, six suspicious person/vehicle/property files and eight assault files.

Vehicle broken down on highway

On May 28, RCMP received a report of a traffic hazard on Highway 1 in the RM of Wallace-Woodworth. RCMP attended and observed a vehicle parked in the right lane on the westbound side of the highway and a male standing on the service road. Police spoke to the male who stated that his vehicle had broken down. During the conversation, the 62-year-old male admitted to consuming alcohol while exhibiting signs of impairment. Police also observed an open bottle of liquor in the front of his vehicle.

After failing to provide sufficient breath samples, the male was issued an immediate roadside prohibition for alcohol, which carries a 90-day drivers licence suspension and $700 administrative penalty for failing to comply with a breath demand. He was also issued a ticket under the Provincial Offences Act for the offence of carrying liquor in a vehicle contrary to the liquor, gaming and cannabis control act which carries a fine of $237.

60 km/hr over the speed limit

On May 29, during a routine traffic patrol on Highway 21 in the community of Sioux Valley Dakota Nation, RCMP observed a vehicle travelling at a high rate of speed. Radar confirmed a speed of 160 km/hr in a 100 km/hr zone. RCMP conducted a traffic stop with the vehicle and the driver was issued a traffic offence notice for speeding which carries a fine of $835. The driver was also issued a serious offence notice for a driver fitness licence review.

Sexual assault charge

On May 29, RCMP received a report of a sexual assault that had occurred in the community of Sioux Valley Dakota Nation. An adult male has been arrested and charged with criminal code charges of sexual assault and sexual interference, as well as a provincial offence notice for supplying liquor to a minor. He remains in custody at this time.

Numbers to call

If you are reporting an emergency please call 911. To report a complaint or non-emergent incident please call 204-748-2135. For general inquiries or administrative requests including criminal record checks please call the administration line at 204-748-2046.

SLOW DOWN AND SAVE A LIFE

when essential service workers are on the road!

Drivers who drive at high speeds are endangering the lives of essential service workers when they are working on the road.

Essential Service Workers such as

- Firemen
- Police Officers
- EMTs
- Tow Truck Drivers
- Construction Workers
- Farm Vehicles
- Municipal Graders & Workers
- Public Works Employees

are put at risk every time they are on the highways & gravel roads!

*For this reason, the Traffic Safety Act states that no person shall drive a vehicle on a highway at a speed greater than 60 kilometres an hour when passing emergency workers, highway workers or municipal graders and workers.

Workers have been killed, injured, or have had close calls due to drivers who choose to disobey the Traffic Safety Act and drive at dangerously high speeds past stopped essential service vehicles.
