Gary Williamson, her sisters Darlene (Glen) Crellin, Jona (Vernon) Palmer, and her brother Geoffrey Crawford. She is also survived by numerous nieces and nephews.

Debbie was a Saskatch-

Debtie was a Saskatch-ewan girl, growing up in Wapella, Regina, and Ro-canville...later making her home in Winnipeg. Her friends and fam-ily always said that Debbie was strong willed and stubborn at times, but she had this enormous heart nad this enormous neart and was constantly help-ing people in need through her countless hours of volunteering. She had al-ways told us that others were there for her during her life's struggles and by helping out at Foodbanks, MCC and Arts Junction, it was her way of paying it forward. Debbie also volunteered as program-coor-dinator for her apartment

During the five years that Debbie lived at Lion's Place, Deb worked tire-Place, Deb worked tre-lessly to bring entertain-ment and celebrations to the residents. Her new friends at Lion's Place were a blessing in all as-pects of her life. Crafting was Debbie's

Our quilting group will quilt until the end of June on Thursdays in the basement of the Golden Jets and will then take a two month break. We will start up again in Sentember. September.

I am really glad that I got my maple trees all trimmed up by Charlie Fafard of Rocanville at the end of May—he did a terrific job and I hate to think of what my yard would look like if this job had not been done, due to all those fierce winds we have had to endure. Every day you hope that the wind will let up just a little bit, but to no avail. It just keeps on blowing everything to bits.

Redvers firetruck fundraising continues

BY RYAN KIEDROWSKI LOCAL JOURNALISM INITIATIVE REPORTER

In order to retain their offensive firefighting status and align with minimum standards set down by the Saskatchewan Public Safety Agency, the Redvers Volunteer Fire Department quickly identified the need for a new truck. Under the guidelines, trucks must be under the 20 years of age and the Redvers depart-ment has one that is close to aging out. The standards placed by the SPSA may seem strict, but the impetus is not to punish volunteer fire de-partments, rather help them thrive, providing an atmosphere to do their critical work more safely.

"They're there to assist you and help you move forward as well," said Redvers Fire Chief Brad Hutton. "They want to do what's in the best interest for all the resident wars." for all the residents, users of the highways, and ob-viously fire protection as well to make sure every-body's safe." Municipal officials and local fire departments col-lectively determine which of the three service levels—defensive, offensive, and full operations - would be appropriate for their com-munity, with Redvers aim-ing for the offensive level.

From a position paper written four years ago sub-mitted to the SPSA by both mitted to the SPSA by both the Saskatchewan Associa-tion of Fire Chiefs and the Saskatchewan Volunteer Fire Fighters Association, both group "strongly ad-vocated" for a provincial service level. The result-ing Minimum Standards Guide focusses on basic frefighting skills with fufirefighting skills with fu-ture additions likely to include vehicle extrication standards and community fire prevention and mitiga-tion activities.

Saskatchewan alone in having such standards, Manitoba, Alberta, BC, the Yukon and Ontario all have a minimum standards program, with our provincial framework us-ing parts of the Manitoba and BC programs already and BC. programs already in place.

"Thankfully, our fire chief and deputy chiefs have been really good at maintaining those higher standards," said Town of Redvers CAO Tricia Pickard in a recent conversaard in a recent conversa-tion. "We've always been a bit above so we're not scrambling right now, whereas some of the other departments are going to be scrambling a little bit." Maintaining a safe fire department is a costly venture as turnout gear for one firefighter can easily run $3,000.

"That's your jackets and pants, so $3,000 for that, plus probably another $1,200 to $1,500 for helmet and boots to go with it," Hutton explained. "Each person is about $4,500 to $5,000 to be dressed.

Another essential item is breathing apparatus, which if bought in bulk, can be obtained for $12,000 each.

"Your requirements are you need minimum eight to 12 of them," Hutton said.

Circling back to the prompt for a new fire truck, 2025 marks the year when the current truck will be deemed too old.

"Redvers is determined to keep our current service level." said an information sheet put out by the Town of Redvers. "Therefor, we require a new(er) fire truck. Ideally, this truck should not be older that 10 years as to give us time to years, as to give us time to budget for the future."

Conversely, a new truck would give a full two decades of service.

Fire trucks are not cheer.

Fire trucks are not cheap. with used units ranging between $400,000 and 5600,000; and a brand new truck easily hitting the million-dollar mark,]hence the need to raise funds and fast!

The Redvers Volunteer Fire Department is jointly funded by the Town of Redvers and RM of Ant-ler, with both municipalities diligently budgeting, saving, and applying for grants in order to af-ford a new truck. To date, generous donations from Enbridge ($7,500) and the Redvers Wildlife Fed-eration ($8,000) have been eration ($8,000) have been received, plus the fire department has brought in $32,000 in fundraising. Unfortunately, federal or provincial funding programs for rural fire departments do not exist currently, making those fundraising efforts even more difficult.

One creative fundraiser

One creative fundraiser is this weekend's Lobster-fest, which will see proceeds devoted to the new

"We've got 230 tickets sold for it," Hutton said. "It's basically a Maritime meal, so it's a five-course, sit-down meal, and it's all served by the firefighters ourselves."

Held every second year, this will be the third time

Redvers has hosted Lobsterfest, and Hutton noted the excitement of the big event in town.

"We're looking forward to it," he said. "It's gonna be exciting."

Town denies second cannabis store

BY RYAN KIEDROWSKI

A discretionary use application to open a second cannabis retailer in Esterhazy was the centre of much discussion during the regular meeting of Town Council on June 12 during the regular meeting of Town Council on June 12. Moments prior to council's regular sitting, a public meeting occurred regarding the discretionary use of the proposed second Main Street cannabis outlet, garnering two members of the public. Incidentally, they remained silent during the meeting.

"We gave them the option to speak, but they didn't want to speak," said Mayor Grant Forster. "They had a letter that they had sent in, and that was it. I think they were just there to find out what the decision was going to be, and then they left before we even made the decision." be, and then they left before we even made the decision

Councillor Randy Bot noted he has heard concerns from residents, and must respect all opinions.

"We're not against marijuana use at all, but I feel like it gives off a vibe that we don't want it here on our main street," he said.

The location in question is 507 Main Street, currently home to Ramn's Heavenly Vapes and Lawless Ink. The proposal for the discretionary use came to town staff just after the May 22 council meeting, catching some off guard.

"Honestly, the first that I heard of it was when it showed up at my Council," Forster told the World-Spectator, adding that the information received was in the council package prior to the June 12 meeting,

"I don't want us to be known as the council that's not business-friendly," Forster remarked during the meeting.
"As Councillor Bot said, if we've got residents that are speaking out against it, we need to we need to be wary of who we are."

Public pressure and the fact that council didn't want to see Main Street lined with cannabis retailers were noted as factors in the decision.

"Had his building been in a different part of town, it may have been approved," noted Forster.

Previous requests from the applicant were lacking the necessary regulatory paperwork, but this application met those requirements, only local approval from council stood as the first forst.

stood as the final factor.

Bot made the motion to deny the request, which was carried unanimously.

Thieves steal golf course camera
An exasperated Councillor Maggie Rowland informed council of the latest breach of security at the golf course. This time, the thieves were thwarted in their attempt to steal fuel, but another item of value was removed unwill-

We got hit again at the golf course, and they stole our camera—our expensive camera," she told council. "And they tried to get into the gas tank, but we had it pretty securely sealed so they didn't get into it. But we're sure they'll be back because now we have no camera."

The maintenance shed where the fuel tanks are housed have been targeted before, but with subsequent fortifica-tions, the effort is now almost impossible. Rowland de-scribed how the culprits would have needed a ladder in order to reach the camera placed inside a birdhouse. The tiny structure was discovered to have its roof removed in addition to the contents.

"I don't know what we can do," said Rowland. "We've done everything that the cops have told us to do."

Ball park questioned

An information item intended to discuss Regional Park funding turned into a somewhat heated discussion on operations—primarily the ball park.

"Last year, we were told you were going to put the money into the ball diamonds and there was nothing done last year," said Councillor Vernon Petracek, pointing to fixing the fence as an example.

Rowland, a member of the Regional Park committee, was quick to defend the accusation.

"We are fixing the fence, we just haven't done it yet," she replied, adding that financial statements are provided. "You can see where we spend the money. It's not like we're putting it in our pockets!"

"The only thing wrong with the ballpark is the fence, and we are working on it," Rowland said. "We are trying." Rowland also noted that the $40,000 that the Regional Park received goes toward paying staff and for upgrades, adding that the golf course is self-sufficient.

A lengthy back-and-forth discussion ensued, before Foretar continued with the regular spends.

A lengthy dack-after-intrinsussion ensured, before Forster continued with the regular agenda.

"We got to keep in mind if it gets to the point where the Regional Park can't handle the ballpark, it's going to have to come back to us to manage," he said. "We need to figure out some way to make this work."

Extensive work on Highway 8

Extensive work was taking place on Highway 8 between Moosomin and Rocanville last week.

Large portions of the highway were being patched and repaired. Highway 8 was named the worst highway in Saskatchewan because of the potholes in CAA's Worst Roads contest. The Ministry of Highways is planning to perform ongoing maintenance to that segment of Highway 8 until a reconstruction project occurs. Design work for the reconstruction of that segment of highway is currently underway.

Kids whose families stay at the regional párk planted flowers of their own at the newly added flower gardens, and will be responsible for taking care of them throughout summer to help contribute to the park's beautification.

Plans coming together for Communities in Bloom this summer in Moosomin

BY ASHLEY BOCHEK
Last year, the Town of Moosomin, Moosomin Regional Park and Pipestone Hills Golf Club came in first place in the province and received four blooms in Communities in Bloom, and will be hosting two judges for the competition again this year.

This year's goal is to reach five blooms to go on to comete nationally

Jasmine Davidson, the organizer of Communities in Bloom in Moosomin, says the committee is excited and have many ideas to get the community involved this year.

Davidson says there are two judges touring Moosomin this July, and one of them a returning judge from last year.

"The whole community is important for the judges to see. There are six categories they will be judging on such as community appearance, landscape, plant and floral dis-town, Davidson says they're taking those comments into consideration for this year.

"The signage was huge. That was the biggest thing they had mentioned last year. We have been working on it and trying to make sure we put some up around town."

Davidson says she will be in contact with the judges. "Hopefully the judges will be here for two days again. We do still have to discuss that with them, but it worked great last year so hopefully we can do that again with them.

"It will be a similar tour as last year for the judges just with a few new spots at local businesses."

Davidson says they hope to see everyone get into the spirit and freshen up their properties to make a good imression on the judges.
"We would love to see the community present their yards and businesses as clean and appealing as possible. We'd love to see everyone be involved in community events and showing their support," she said.

She says they could always use more volunteers to help with this event.

"Volunteers are always welcome. It is a lot of work organizing and prepping, so we can always find them something to do to help."

Davidson says the community clean-up was a great start to getting the town ready for Communities in Bloom.

"I think the community clean-up made a difference.
Anything helps and it was good to see everyone around helping in the community."

Davidson is giving out sunflower seeds to businesses to participate in a sunflower growing contest.

"There are quite a few businesses involved in our sunflower growing contest. I think there will be some more, but we have a good start.

"Anyone can pick seeds up from the Town Office to participate."

She says the most important thing to make this event a success is community engagement.
"The absolutely most important thing anyone can do in Moosomin for Communities in Bloom is appreciate the community and take pride in helping make it beautiful for the judges and for all of us to live in a clean community."

State of parking lot at Esterhazy Care Home

Dear Editor: I don't know if anyone else has noticed the shape that the parking lot is in at the Esterhazy Care Home. It is so hard to find a decent place to park as one does run the risk of knocking out the bottom of your vehicle when you drive in there. About the only place that does not have a lot of broken pavement is where the ambulance parks and even it is not that wonderful for someone who is handicapped.

The residents dare not to go off of the sidewalk, be-cause they just might tumble right out onto the ground. It is such a shame, because whoever looks after the flowers and the grass does a terrific job and it looks very pretty. But-then there is the parking lot! I have no idea who fixes the holes, but it sure would be great if some of them were filled in. I only have a small Ranger Truck and I really do not want to lose it in one of those holes!

New daycare in Elkhorn to bring 74 childcare spaces Construction slated to be finished in September

LOCAL JOURNALISM INITIATIVE REPORTER

A daycare is so much more than a place for children to learn early fundamentals and enhance skills. Such a facility in a town becomes an economic drawing card—even luring some folks away from the city to a rural area they'd prefer raise their children, maybe even a chance to return home.

For a place like Elkhorn, and its approximately 460 residents, this is a very attractive promise. There's a new daycare centre going up in Elkhorn, and the community is quite excited for the potential the facility promises.

Jessica Hay is the Director at the Elkhorn Learning Centre

pessica riay is the Director at the Enkolin Learning Certifice, which has been in Elkhorn since 2020 and is currently operating from the curling rink in town. She shared an update with the World-Spectator on progress of the new daycare facility that's under construction.

What stage is the daycare at right now? I understand

What stage is the daycare at right now? I understand there was construction going throughout the winter.

They're currently working on the inside of the building right now and the landscaping around the building. I actually haven't been able to get into the building as of right now. I did see it when it was at its beginning stages where they didn't have any of the drywall up or any of the interior walls, but I haven't been able to see it at this above. But I was hearing to get in their seen to take a look. stage. But I was hoping to get in there soon to take a look.

How did this process all begin? Here in Saskatchewan, we had a provincial mandate from the government that they wanted a certain amount of additional childcare spaces. I understand that was similar in Manitoba

There was a round of applications that you can apply to get one of these RTM centres, and we did not apply at that point. Another round came out—I was not the di-rector at that time—but our previous director and board decided to apply, as well as the RM. There's just such a big need for more spaces in this community. We have about a 54-space-long waitlist as of right now and we only have 28 spaces in our current centre.

So there's a huge demand.

There's a huge demand. Some of those people on our waitlist are from surrounding communities, so it is nice to have those spots for people who cannot get daycare in their own community, and just to have for extra people

So this will be an extension of the Early Learning

We're planning on still keeping our current space open for school age kids—just strictly a school age centre—and then our new centre will have 74 spaces.

That's going to meet the need of the 54 and then may-be a few spaces to have for growth. Yes, absolutely!

I read about a partnership with the Assiniboine Community College in Brandon, training daycare workers. How has that worked out?

How has that worked out?

We were supposed to start a workplace program here in Elkhorn, and it fell through. The other programs we were offering at the time were much easier for our rural communities and our communities that were away from Elkhorn, so that they didn't have to drive into Elkhorn to take the schooling so it was much easier for the people surrounding Elkhorn to just do it online rather than driving to Elkhorn. So it did end up falling through. But currently we have one staff member enrolled in a workplace program in Virden, we have four enrolled in Robertson rently we have one staff member enrolled in a workplace program in Virden, we have four enrolled in Robertson College taking their ECE II (Early Childhood Educator) through online. It's been really good. We've been trying to get more trained staff as we need the trained staff to be able to open the spots in the centre. When it comes to opening the centre, we can only open spots that we have trained staff for.

Is there a certain ratio of spaces to staff?

Our ratio, we need 66 per cent trained staff in our building, and we need to meet that to fully open the centre. So as long as we keep being able to hire and train staff, we should be able to open fully—probably not right at opening date, but hopefully soon after.

Nice. Is there a projected opening date in sight? Our projected opening date is September 15, that's what we've been told since the beginning, but it is definitely subject to change depending on the construction process.

That seems to be the case with construction, too, things get delayed a little bit! What would be the next steps right now? I suppose it's a lot more behind the scenes work for the daycare. There is a lot of behind the scenes work, just as far as getting those staff trained, as well as trying to hire staff for the new centre. Also, we do have to furnish the new centre, so we've been fundraising so that we can furnish all of the rooms in the new centre. That's a big undertaking—ordering all the furniture, figuring out exactly what we need for each room, and then we need to have it furniture. nished, and everything needs to be up to code so that we

For people who would like to donate, can they just cut you a cheque?

We're also taking donations of toys, and craft supplies—anything like that—and monetary donations. We are very, very grateful for all of the support that the community has given us and surrounding community. Elkhorn is such a great town to live in as well as work in because they're just so great with helping out and donating. Whenever we ask for any donations, they're always the first to. It's a really great community. We would never be able to do this without the community support that we have.

It's an obvious need that people can easily get on Everybody in the town is so excited about it. Even people that don't have anything to do with the daycare. Everybody really has a connection to the daycare, whether it's friends kids, or grandkids. Everybody is so on board with this new daycare, and they're so excited about it. It's so nice to hear all the positive comments behind it.

It's really a sign of growth in a community, too.

It's definitely going to bring people to the town. Just knowing that there's a brand new daycare here that potentially will have spots for their children, as well as places for people to work. It already has brought people from out of town, we've actually hired two people from Brandon-area that have moved here to work at our daycare, so that's great for the community.

Finally, what would the age ranges be for kids at the

We will have ages three months to 12 years. We really noticed a need for the school-age programs, so it'll be nice to be able to put it into our centre.

St. Lazare students visit the Elkhorn Auto Museum

BY ED JAMES
About 20 preschool children with their teacher, aides and a few parents from St. Lazare recently had a unique year-end day

It started with a stop at the McAuley farm sheep and the newborn lambs. Next they went to the Elkhorn Auto Museum where they were broken down into three groups for various tours.

One tour was of the museum's historic vehicle collection given by museum employee Carter McLean.

Another group went to the 100-year-old farmhouse where volunteer Lil Jackson told them what it was like to be a farm wife 100 years ago. Jackson also explained how the cream separator worked and how the cream could be made into ice cream or butter 100 years ago. She also told them that the cream could also be taken to the local farm fresh eggs, and traded for other gro-ceries when money was short.

At the one-room school, retired teacher Ed James told the kids what school was like 100 years ago, as they sat in the hard wooden desks. They saw the old large jam tins that was also later and as leading later to the same later was a late that were later used as lunch pails by the students and enjoyed his demonstration of writing with a nib pen and a bottle of blue ink, and how you had to use a blotter to dry ink, and how you had to use a blotter to dry the ink on the paper.

Their final stop of the day was at the Elkhorn splash pad where, despite the cool temps, they enjoyed it. The preschool staff were very happy with the lessons and sights that they saw at the museum, and as for the museum, they were all very impressed by the French language skills that the children had and how easily they could switch from had and how easily they could switch from the French language to the English lan-guage.
